

Misogyny in Courtship with Referance to Judith Mcnaught's Once and Always

S. SHALINI

*Ph. D Research Scholar (Part-Time), Department of English Government Arts College for Women
Bargur, Krishnagiri*

Dr. K. MANGAYARKARASI

*Assistant Professor & Research Supervisor, Department of English
Government Arts College for Women
Bargur, Krishnagiri*

Abstract

Judith Spaeth Mcnaught Smith is shortly named as Judith Mcnaught (May10, 1944) born in a Sancuis obispo California, United States of America. She is the first female executive producer at a CBS radio station. She is majored in Business at University of North Western. Mcnaught is very active in children charity and participated effectively for the breast cancer patients. She is recently begins promoting literary issued and creating a subplot on literacy in her novel. She is an expert in writing on romance and suspense topic. She is active since 1978, an American bestselling author of contemporary and historical novels. Also, she received dozens of best-selling and top rated novels sofar.

Keywords: patriarchy, misogyny, misunderstanding, ambivalence, feminist nightmare.

Mcnaught is excellent in writing on romance and suspense topic. She is in active since 1978; Mcnaught started her career in 1982 as an American best-selling author of contemporary and historical novels. However, over 50 new historical Romance genres have blower up and are being published every month by Judith. Many of them are in full-length and Mcnaught always set within the historical Regency period. Although she switched on to jot down contemporary Romances in 1990, hopeful that she would have a more robust opportunity to differentiate her, add a less-saturated market her career is sustained to mature.

Mcnaught have gradually introduced elements of suspense into her writing. Her works are regardless however her books are tending to be fast paced and have strong, loyal, compassionate, intelligent female characters. In 1990's Coors Brewing, asked Mcnaught to write down a book that will address to women and it may well be utilized by the corporate to market it in women literacy program. Appocited at the invention that one five women is illiterate. Mcnaught accord to rewrite her almost completed manuscript 'Perfect' to insert the literacy theme.

The change took her an additional six week to incorporate. Mcnaught chose to announce a portion of her remuneration from the book to women's literacy programs are ordered and expected that each book of her contain a card given to readers' information on how to donate to literacy programs or to become tutors. She is the keynote speaker in 1996 and 1997 for the Romance writers of American conference. Mcnaught have also been awarded a 'Romantic time career Achievement Award; and had a 'Number one New York Time Best seller with romantic suspense.

Judith is the authors of fourteen novels and two short stories, United States of America New York Times once said 'when it comes to writing Mcnaught is a class by her'. In fact, Mcnaught takes us on such a roller coaster excitement, feeling, ecstasy and joy with full of emotions, and in select novels of her speaks about many misunderstandings in love and marriage. In this some readers may question whether assertive characters and distrust issues are truly over when the novel ends. She is master of reading the mind of the readers also expert in actualizing vigorous, active, bold, spirited root able heroines and annihilating calamitous, mortifying heroes.

The following is an analysis of the research that has been conducted with the goal of explaining which cultural factors determine the importance of love as a basis for marriage. In the western culture she found an association between freedom in choosing a spouse and greater romantic love as a basis for marriage. In their tradition, they found that "the greater the freedom of choice, the greater also was the degree of exaggeration of qualities, the more important was sex as a source of attraction, and the more important were feelings of affection and courtly love.

The present study of Mcnaught is emphasis on women's big emotions, misunderstanding in love, and mistrust in life, loneliness and suspect. Generally, women in the entire universe are not supposed to raise their voice even if they don't do any flaws or mistakes. They should not voice for their rights, against injustice or questioning against inequality, belief, custom, rituals, chastity and gender discrepancies. Always women happen to be obedient, submissive, and virgin or chastise. They should be passive not to claim any rights offered in family and society as neither a woman nor a human being. It is in this context that novels of Judith Mcnaught exist. She writes for women who suppressed in domestic life and love.

In once and always the main character of the novel is Victoria Seaton an innocent Young naive girl from America. Her parents loved Victoria and her sister Dorothy parents of them raised in a little warm home. One day her parents met with an accident and died leaving her and her sister Dorothy. There is no one to take care of these both. Before their mother passes away, she told the doctor of relatives name he could write and see it they would be willing to care for them, Victoria's first woo is 'Andrew Bainbridge' in America. But unfortunately, they both parted. Dorothy was taken to her great grandmother and Victoria Seaton to her uncle's house and both of them are wealthy relatives. They separated each other because the great grandmother did not want to take Victoria, she reminded her too much of her granddaughter Katherine, because Katherine is mother to Victoria.

Victoria, arriving upon to her uncle Charles fielding mansion, did not know that her uncle already took the freedom of announcing her betrothal to her cousin Jason fielding. Victoria and Jason are very much opposite each other always there will be a quarrel between them. Victoria is very much naïve about everything even the bees and birds. She was so fun loving and downright just cared about the servants and maids in the mansion. Victoria got married to Jason and started to love him intensely but, Jason thought all women desire is fulfilled with jewels and ornaments.

Jason started to give gifts to Victoria right from second day of their marriage. These incidents make Victoria to hate Jason and painful vision of giving her pearls and sapphires it makes her wondered sadly that he thought he had to give bribe for a woman to take care of him. Victoria comes to know a long-lasting truth from Mike Farrell a sailor friend of Jason's said Victoria that if she would analyze what Jason went through in his entire life from childhood, she could be able to love 'Once and always' is what captain did for his wife that Jason got married to women before Victoria named Melissa an English woman.

She is beautiful and amoral woman had looks and style, what she needed is only money from Jason. "Melissa was a slut- a slut who spent her life going bed to bed after she was married"(280). She went wild with fury that Jason was an illegitimate son to Charles it offended her principles to mingle her with Jason. This offence made her to live with another man. Melisa is blessed with a son named Jamie. Jamie was the inheritance of Jason so, he kept her in height of fashion he didn't cared and ignored her affairs.

Melissa took Jamie with her and tried to run away with latest lover of her unfortunately their ship sank in a storm both died in storm. Her mind was on Jason. Warmth filled her heart the man who sheltered her when she came to England. He bestowed with beautiful things, teased her when she was in lonely and married her given his name to her. Victoria thought her husband how to be loved and how to get love in return without giving diamonds or rubies. Jason thought 'love' is based on jewelers and gifts for women.

To Victoria, life had become meaningful and a rainbow of delights filled her life. "Jason made love to her and taught her to make love to him"(352). He bathed her with pleasure, stormy passion and shared his time with her. Victoria had thought him to trust and now all the wrong belief about a woman fades from the mind of Jason. He gave himself completely body, mind, heart and soul to her.

He withheld nothing given her everything his love, his attention and every conceivable gift as token of love.

There comes a sudden storm in their loving relationship, once Jason went to Portsmouth for a wedding anniversary leaving Victoria for a week, she drags the night and days and longs for Jason arrival where comes 'Andrew Bainbridge' from America whom she loved in the past pulling her roughly into his arms. Victoria retorted slowly recovers her stunned paralysis and pulls his arms away. "I've loved you since the day i saw you racing across our fields on that Indian pony... Tory, please! Come home with me"(359)

She is nothing but a puppet in a game played by two selfish -heartless men. She thought Jason had known everything that Andrew is coming. Charles's father of Jason played a tricky game known Andrew is alive he will come at any moment to get hold the hands of her. Andrew had written so many letters to Charles about the love of Victoria. Charles hidden everything from Victoria and he played a game. In anger and frustration, she screamed Charles and went out of the house on riding a horse in a thundering hooves and a man's unintelligible shout. Panic and fury raised in her heart also she remembered the stories of vicar's blood thirsty bandits who preyed the travelers at night. Her horse galloping down the river path she raced into the woods

"Victoria gazed adoringly she ran straight towards him and seeing the pale face flinging herself against him and wrapping his arms tightly. She cries out brokenly and he is struggling with ramping emotions for a moment and tension drained out at last Victoria gets victory in gaining the happy life with Jason fielding" (362).

The truth is that everyone can assume or believe plainly by the word 'romances and the romance novels are about responsiveness, awareness, delicacy, sensitivity, traditional values, love and sympathy. There is a soft sentimentality owned with all these things and also it is associated evokes the cavalier and disbeliever. Judith thinks nearly everyone is secretly sentimental and they are comfortable, confidential. But to actually comes out and admit it to subject oneself to potential contemptuous laughter at someone. That is frightened to most men and to some women when it is endangered.

In her work she was able to bring the problems faced by women in the society. She concludes that the works of her suggest that romantics in love are a near-universal concept. In this way, she hoped to eliminate the earlier assumptions that romantic love is a uniquely Western phenomenon. Her work builds on this research by compiling a series of articles further discussing the topic of romantics in love, including articles that even suggest that romantic attachment is a biological adaptation of the human brain that maximizes reproductive success.

References

- Mcnaught, Judith. Once and Always, New York: Simon & Schuster, Inc. Free pocket publishing. 1987. Print.
 WWW. All about romance, Writer's Corner for January, (2006).